UN Delegates Scan New 'Battle Lines'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)

Delegates to the General Assembly took advantage of a week-end lull today to survey the "battle lines" of East-West conflict drawn during the first week of the assembly's 12th session.

No formal U.N. activity was scheduled today except a closed meeting of the advisory committee on the emergency force that is patrolling the troubled borders of the Middle East. A report on the current status of UNEF is expected early next week.

Monday morning's assembly session will be devoted to policy speeches by Peru, Canada, Colombia and New Zealand—all nations friendly to the West.

East and West will not come to grips again until Monday afternoon, when the General Assembly decides whether to include two controversial items—Hungary and Red China's right to a U.N. seat—in its agenda.

The world body is expected to approve discussion of Hungary and to ban consideration this year of the perennial issue of China.

This week, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on Thursday and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko yesterday laid down the lines of conflict which are expected to dominate much of the assembly's coming debate.

Each blamed the other for the current troubles of the Middle East, and each urged the assembly to adopt the proposals for disarmament advanced by his side in the deeply-divided world.

Irish Foreign Minister Frank Aiken injected an unexpected note into the debate yesterday by proposing that all of the Big Four Powers "draw back" from the Mideast and abandon the "acute diplomatic competition" there and elsewhere which might touch off World War III.

Twp. Officials Responsible For Misuse

By KAY BLINCOE
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Bensalem Township auditors filed a $144,369.31 surcharge against six present and former township officials yesterday, noting "possible manipulation of funds" in the 1956 audit of township records.

Chester Korona, former chairman of the board of auditors, filed the audit yesterday with the clerk of the quarter sessions court in Doylestown. Surcharged were: Supervisors Raymond Wink and Joseph Mordock, former supervisors Raymond Brenner and James H. Hartley, Township Zoning Officer Joseph Sloan, and Township Engineer Gerald Sommerson.

Wink was surcharged $52,575.15. Other surcharges include: Mordock, $48,026.52; Brenner, $35,182.56; Hartley, $6,364.06; Sloan, $275; and Sommerson, $1,946.02.

Responsibility

The surcharge makes each man responsible for the monies mentioned.

The charges were the result of the auditors' findings of "improper procedures and failure of township officials to correct them," when auditing the 1956 township records.

Auditors Korona, James Strange, and Frank T. Buck, presented the 36-page audit to the courts noting "possible manipulation of funds" and recommending the surcharges.

The audit was read to nearly 25 members of Bensalem civic associations at a special meeting, called by the Bensalem Council of Civic Associations.

The report said it should be considered as a fair presentation of 1956 affairs. Lack of prior records and poor accounting make a complete audit impossible. Other matters must still be investigated.

The auditors said they considered that innocent following of (Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

Ike Advises Little Rock To Comply

NEWPORT, R.I. (UP)—President Eisenhower today counseled the people of Little Rock, Ark., to comply with court-ordered school integration "without disorder."

The Chief Executive in a special statement expressed his first public opinion on the withdrawal of Arkansas National Guardsmen from Central High School in Little Rock in compliance with a temporary injunction issued by Federal District Judge Ronald N. Davies.

The President called withdrawal of the troops by Gov. Orval E. Faubus "a necessary step in the right direction."

"I am confident," he said, "that the citizens of the city of Little Rock and the state of Arkansas will welcome this opportunity to demonstrate that in their city and in their state proper orders of a United States court will be executed promptly and without disorder."

The President's statement was issued by his press secretary James C. Hagerty, at the vacation White House here on Narragansett Bay.

Eisenhower conferred early today by telephone with Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr., in Washington, and expected to talk with him again during the day.

Hagerty pointed out to reporters that the school board was meeting in Little Rock today and apparently the White House and the Justice Department were closely interested in proceedings of the board.

Hagerty said he thought he would have an additional statement either from the White House or the President later this afternoon in connection with the school integration situation. He set no time for this statement.

The President learned of the troop withdrawal last night within a few minutes after the action was taken by Faubus. Brownell called Hagerty and the press secretary went to the President's quarters to tell him of the development.

The President decided, however, to defer public comment until after his morning review of the situation with the attorney general.

Confidential Jury Sees No Immediate Verdict

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Deliberations in the Confidential magazine criminal libel trial extended today into a weekend examination with no verdict in sight.

Faubus Turns Problem Over To Authorities

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus today dumped Little Rock's integration problem into the hands of local and federal authorities and disclaimed responsibility for any violence that may occur Monday when unguarded white schools will be opened to Negroes.

Faubus, who pulled National Guardsmen from their posts outside Central High School last night in bowing to a federal court order, will leave later today with Mrs. Faubus for the southern governors' conference at Sea Island, Ga.

As soon as Faubus leaves, Lt. Gov. Nathan Gordon will take over as Arkansas' chief executive.

Denies Any Defeat

Faubus said in a television speech last night he was calling off the troops that had guarded Central High from the first day of the fall term to prevent Negro students from entering.

But he denied he had been defeated in what he termed a preventive action to preserve the peace. "I'm not beaten," Faubus told a newsman who had put the defeat question to him bluntly. "This fight is not over."

Guardsmen left the school only a few hours after Federal Judge Ronald N. Davies enjoined Faubus and two military aides not to interfere with integration.

Lawyers Boycott Hearing

Faubus' three lawyers walked out of the courtroom when Davies rejected two motions for dismissing the Justice Department's petition for a temporary injunction. They boycotted the hearing. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Yardley Man Found Guilty

A Mercer County N.J. jury found a Yardley driver guilty of death by auto yesterday after two hours' deliberation.

The man, Robert Borden, 20, of 10 North Edgewater Ave., could be sentenced to three years in jail and receive a $1,000 fine on the charge. He'll be sentenced in a few weeks. Prosecutor Stanley E. Rutkowski said. Borden is out on bail.

The Yardley man testified he had a few drinks before the accident last March that caused the death of John Furstenberg, 31 Elm St., Lambertville.

Furstenberg was a passenger in Borden's car when it went off the road near Titusville, N.J.

John Barry, assistant prosecutor, asked for the conviction on grounds that "speed and alcohol don't mix," and that the death was caused by reckless driving.

Grace Awaits Second Child

MONTE CARLO (UP)—Most Monagasques said today they hoped Princess Grace and Prince Rainier's new baby would be a brother for Princess Caroline.

Monaco was delighted at the news issued last night that their royal family is expecting another child late in March. But it was not as excited as at the announcement of Princess Grace's first pregnancy.

The birth of Princess Caroline eight months ago assured them of an heir to the throne. As long as the royal line exists, Monaco remains an independent, tax-free principality. If the line dies, it reverts to France and becomes subject to French taxes.

Crowds gathered in the courtyard last night hoping for an appearance on the balcony of Prince Rainier and his former movie-star wife, but they did not see them.

World Mourns Passing Of Monarch, Composer

King Haakon Of Norway Dies At 85

OSLO, Norway (UP) — King Haakon VII of Norway died in his sleep today at the age of 85, plunging into sorrow a nation which had idolized its monarch for saying no to Hitler and traitor Quisling in the face of certain defeat.

He was the world's oldest reigning king and had ruled Norway since it won independence from Sweden in 1905.

Stolid Norwegians, hearing of his death by word of mouth, radio and black-bordered newspapers, stopped in the streets, bowed their heads, removed their caps and wept.

Ill Two Years

The Danish-born king had been suffering for more than two years as a result of a hip fracture which never healed fully because of his age.

In the last few days a respiratory ailment put him on the critical list and doctors prepared the people for the end. His heart stopped at 4:35 this morning (11:35 p.m. e.d.t. yesterday).

Crown Prince Olav, Haakon's only child, automatically became king and swore allegiance to the Norwegian constitution at an extraordinary cabinet meeting at the palace this morning.

When Norway broke from Swedish rule in 1905 to become an independent nation, the young Danish prince was asked to ascend the throne of Norway.

He agreed, but only on condition the people accept him. In a plebiscite that November, he got 98 per cent of the votes.

Shuns Nazi Proposal

When the military forces of Hitler's Germany invaded Norway in April, 1940, King Haakon and his family were forced to flee.

Hitler sent his ambassador to see Haakon in person and ask him to return to Oslo as puppet king with the infamous Nazi Norwegian army Major Vidkun Quisling as prime minister.

Haakon, then 68 years old and nearly exhausted by the invincible Nazi onslaught, gave a simple, one-word reply: "No."

Finland Pays Respects To Jean Sibelius

HELSINKI (UP) — Finland mourned today the death of composer Jean Sibelius whose stirring music helped inspire the nation in its struggle for freedom from Russia more than 60 years ago.

Sibelius, who would have been 92 on Dec. 8, died of a brain hemorrhage at his country home last night even as British conductor Sir Malcolm Sargent was lifting his baton to conduct Sibelius' Fifth Symphony at University Hall in Helsinki.

Flags fluttered at half staff today throughout Finland and a state funeral was planned for the man who was revered as the country's leading citizen as well as one of the great composers of all time. Telegrams of condolence poured in from throughout the world.

Known For "Finlandia"

Sibelius, a tall, bald man had a stern face that seemed hewn out of granite and he usually was smoking a cigar. He burst upon the Finnish scene when the country was swept by a wave of nationalism aimed at making it an independent nation.

His tone poem "Finlandia," which helped inspire his countrymen in their struggle to loosen Russian bonds, speaks of the nationalistic feelings of that period more than 60 years ago.

Sibelius was eating a late breakfast about noon when he suffered the fatal hemorrhage, his physician Dr. Laine Ylijoki, reported. He remained conscious until about 4 p.m.

Dr. Ylijoki said the brain hemorrhage was not expected and the aging composer had been in good health in past months following his long illness. His wife, Aino, and close relatives were present when he died.

He was considered by many as the greatest composer of symphonies since Beethoven. His last symphony, the Seventh, appeared as far back as 1925, but there were recurrent rumors in musical circles the old master was working on his eighth. It never appeared.

His last years have been spent at Ainola, the home he built 50 years ago in the mountain fastness outside Helsinki and which became a shrine for music lovers though he received only a chosen few in his later years.

Bensalem Officials Hit With Surcharge

past procedures may have caused many errors and omissions.

Early in 1956, when the new board of auditors began on the report, the audit shows, attempts were made to "bring evidence of malpractice" to the attention of the supervisors, who were "at all times constantly repudiating all cautions and criticisms and who appeared to be overwhelmed by their self-importance and authority."

"We aren't impressed by valiant gestures for bettering the government while this audit has been in preparation," the auditors said, apparently referring to a plea for good government last spring by Murdock.

The report said the supervisors knew of improper procedures and refused to correct them. It pointed up neglect as the chief factor of corruption.

Paycheck Approval

Murdock and Wink were shown as approving paychecks for each other, knowing each was not performing his duties.

Supervisor Brenner, a real estate man, was appointed after the resignation of Hartley. The report says he used his office to provide himself with financial gain.

At an unscheduled meeting, Nov. 30, Brenner told about land, priced at $30,000, available for a township. Purchase was approved. Settlement was desired before Dec. 31. Unmentioned in the minutes, a check for $5,000 was drawn for a deposit on the land, on Dec. 5. An ordinance for the purchase was adopted Dec. 28.

Auditors said Brenner received nearly $375 commission from his real estate employers' commission on the sale, and the then secretary-treasurer of the board, Joseph Murdock, collected $450 commission.

"As condemnable as the enforcement of the appointed offices may be, the neglect in office as supervisors is even more so," the auditors said.

"The preparation of the budget was regarded as an unpleasant formality, which in turn, was disposed of expeditiously. Taxes were levied at the highest rate and then a budget was prepared to dispose of them. Money otherwise unappropriated," auditors said, "was dumped into an appropriation marked 'miscellaneous' giving no details."

Not Detailed

"No account was detailed to any degree," auditors said, "which is a practice that can afford convenient manipulation of accounts."

Budgetary procedures outlined by statutes were completely disregarded, auditors said. Purchases were made without proper authorization and paid for, in many instances, by simply preying on the general fund, the report said.

"We haven't found one function of government that was supervised to any degree," auditors said.

Not only is there no indication of where or how monies are being spent for road maintenance, but such monies were appropriated in an undeliberate manner, the auditors show.

"It appears," auditors said, "procedures have been to appropriate large lumps of money for road maintenance, retain a comparatively large labor crew at higher than par wages, while the crews remained unsupervised and wasted considerable amount of money purchasing materials."

Wink was former superintendent of roads. Auditors said road crewmen told them they couldn't place Wink or remember him ever being present supervising road work. "Large portions of the road crews' time were spent in the township garage," auditors said, "which after discovery, caused Wink to say, 'Get lost' to his men."

The township engineer seems to have been active in inspecting roads within the township, auditors said, for the supervisors spent "considerable amounts of money for this service."

No Record

"Yet, not a single report, approval, or certification of proper completion of construction exists in township records," auditors said.

Two persons apparently do the job of zoning officer, the auditors said. One position, that of "zoning secretary," is an illegal appointment, the report shows. Neither Sloan or his zoning secretary, Natalie Strange, collect proper zoning fees, auditors said, and $1,050 exists in uncollected fees in that department.

"We cannot help but speculate that had it not been for the interference of Solicitor John Wood in matters that were not of his concern," auditors said, "the contained actions might not have been necessary."

The adopted budget provides only $25 as compensation for solicitor's services, but has caused an over-expenditure of this account of over $10,000, auditors said.

Wood replaced Robert Baker about mid-term, but billing was lumped into many services in one sum. It is impossible to isolate services and assign specific costs.

No Opinions

"For the vast sum spent," auditors said, "not one opinion was submitted in writing, as prescribed by law, from either solicitor."

Law forbids voting in favor of yourself where one can gain financially from it.

By a vote by Murdock and Wink, Wink was appointed roadmaster at an annual salary of $6,000 and Murdock was appointed secretary-treasurer at 3 per cent of expenditures. His estimated salary was to have been $8,500 annually. Both were later removed from their posts.

Hartley abstained from voting on the roadmaster and secretary-treasurer posts and resigned shortly afterward. Brenner, who replaced Hartley, resigned when Murdock made a motion to oust Wink from the roadmaster job.
